STEADY IMPROVEMENT.

The President's Condition Altogether Satisfactory.

Some Points About Guiteau.

Washington, 8.—Chief Brooks, of the secret service division, who investigated the assassination to see if Guiteau had any confederates said, to day: "Our investigations are about over. We looked over the whole field. There is really nothing that has not been published in the case, except the unfortunate gentleman who, through mistaken benevolence, lent Guiteau money, believing it was to help him pay his board. It would probably be of no importance to any one except that gentleman himself. To make it public would be doing a great wrong. People are so apt to discredit what a man says or does."

Do you think from your examination of Guiteau that he is insane? He is an eccentric man, a man who would be fanatical about any subject he might dabble in. He would go to extremes. I do not think that anything he said to me indicated irrationality. He is as sane as any man. An insane man or monomaniac rather excites one's pity. He excites one's antagonism. One's disposition is to argue with him. When one advances an argument that baffles him, he seems to realize that his position is untenable, and impatiently says: "I do not want to argue with you. You cannot convince me; I cannot change your views." There is really no mystery about the case, said Major Brooks. As a statesman, the newspapers have printed everything about it. They have got everything in some way. As for Guiteau's past career, the newspaper reporters seem to have found out all about that.

The following letter of instruction to Commander Patton, commanding the Washington Navy Yard, was addressed, to day, by Secretary Hunt: You will place under the disposal of Mr. Dorsey every article of machinery for which he may make application to you. You will also assign to duty under him a skillful and efficient engineer and machinist, with such other assistants as he may require from you. You will obtain all the necessary transportation of material and men Mr. Dorsey may require. They must be furnished without delay, as they are for the use of surgeons at the Executive Mansion, and are deemed necessary to the health and comfort of the President during his present critical illness.

The Dorsey referred to by Secretary Hunt is a well known and skillful mining engineer who has had extensive experience in artificial ventilation, etc. It is proposed to secure better and more perfect ventilation of the President's room by the use of mechanical appliances.

11 p.m.—Although the pulse and temperature of the President have been rather higher than yesterday on account of the presence of supuration, which is now going on in the wound, he has passed a very comfortable day. There has been no return of the acidity of the stomach which ceased yesterday. It is thought by the oatmeal gruel which he ate, and he has not suffered to-day as he did at intervals last night from pain in the legs and ankles. He has taken nourishment at short intervals and larger quantities than at any previous day, and has retained it without any uneasiness of the stomach. He complains of feeling tired to-night, but is otherwise comfortable. The supuration will probably continue, Dr. Reyburn says, several days together, with slightly increased fever which it causes. It is, however, a perfectly natural process and one which was anticipated at the present stage of recovery. The increased pulse and temperature therefore, shown by the official bulletins need cause no alarm. There is a certain amount of injured tissue along the track of the bullet near the external opening of the wound which must come away in the shape of discharge. The wound has been twice antiseptically dressed to day and the patient repeatedly sponged all over with a weak solution of carbolic acid in water applied by means of a hand atomizer. The spray and sponge baths have been the source of great refreshment and have added very materially to the President's comfort. The weather to-day is much cooler than yesterday, so that the comparative failure of all different methods of artificial refrigeration which have hitherto been tried is not so unfortunate as it might otherwise have been. A force of fifteen or twenty men from the navy yard is now at work in the basement putting in a steam fan or blower, by which pure artificially cooled air is to be forced into the President's room in such quantities as may be necessary. Two city fire engines are also at work at the eastern end of the mansion, under the direction of an officer of the navy department, who is experimenting upon the production of cold by means of the liberation of compressed air. One or the other of the above methods of supplying the President's room with cool air, will be put into effective operation to-morrow. The President at this hour (11.45) is sleeping quietly, and the attending physicians report that his symptoms are in every way favorable and satisfactory. If his recovery were assured they say his symptoms would probably not be other than they are at the present stage of the case.

New York, 8.—Commercial's Washington: The President continues in a very favorable condition. He exhibited more strength than at any time since the shooting and everybody is much encouraged. Mrs. Garfield was greatly refreshed by her ride this morning, and a more confident feeling prevails in the White House this afternoon, than since Saturday. Doctors say they are much encouraged by the progress of the supuration and the fever is not by any means what they anticipated.

The Tribune: Large amounts of handsome subscriptions to Mrs. Garfield were received to-day by mail, more by telegraph, and with a little canvassing the whole amount might have been secured by night. James S. Morgan, an American banker in London, and John H. Darne, subscribed $5,000, Vanderbilt promised $5,000, if the President dies. It is possible the whole of the country will be invited to contribute, and that the fund may be raised to $500,000. No difficulty is anticipated in raising $250,000.

New York, 9.—W. W. Concoran, Washington; Geo. I. Seney, and Geo. Childs, contribute $5,000 each to the Garfield fund.

It is proposed that there be a national subscription of $5 and upwards, for the purposes set forth in the subscription list. If the amount subscribed shall even double that originally contemplated by the Chamber of Commerce, there will be no subscriber to grade his share of it, whether it shall prove to be a provision for the widow and orphans or the President of the United States, as now most happily seems much more probable.

Washington, 9.—Siemens Bros have just finished the new Atlantic cable and send the first message, a congratulation to the President.

The following was received:

Salem, Oregon, 8.

Hon. J. G. Blaine, Washington:

The people of Oregon send congratulations, rejoicing with all true friends of liberty over the improving prospects for the recovery of the President.

(Signed,) W. W. Thayer, Governor.

Edward Hirsch, State Treasurer.

R. P. Carmichael, Secretary of State.

The President has been more comfortable to day than at any time since he was wounded. His children were permitted to see him this morning, and attending physicians report at 6 p.m. that he is improving satisfactorily. None of the systems of artificial refrigerating thus far have entirely met the sanguine anticipations of the inventors and suggestors, but as the weather continues reasonably cool the President has not suffered much from heat since Thursday. Experiments are still being made with refrigerating apparatus in anticipation of the return of hot weather, which is predicted by Gen. Hazen.

Settled quietness prevails at the White House, and hope for the President's recovery has grown into general belief. Except cabinet officers and newspaper correspondents there are but few visitors to-night. Dorsey has one of the fire district fire engines in the White House yard for the purpose of testing its capacity for compressing air for lowering the temperature of the President's room. Dorsey has not much confidence in the success of this experiment, but thinks it may do some good. Compressed cold air will be thrown into the White House through rubber hose. A fire engine has been telegraphed for from New York and will reach here to-morrow. When it arrives Dorsey says he will be able to keep the temperature of the President's room at any degree desired. Dr. Reyburn said to a reporter at 10 o'clock that the President's condition was more hopeful than ever. All symptoms were favorable and the surgeons hope for an increase every hour. The rise in the pulse and temperature to-day was due to the cause thoroughly understood, and does not indicate anything unfavorable. Everything the bullet came in contact with is dead matter and must slough off. This sloughing process has commenced most favorably, as shown by the character of the pus discharged from the wound. One great danger apprehended was that the sloughing might cause hemorrhage by rupturing a blood vessel, but Dr. Reyburn says this danger is now a great measure passed. He says this produced irritation and surgical fever, and caused the rise in the temperature and pulse, but this fever is not high enough to be dangerous; that in fact it is moderate, and, under circumstances and conditions, satisfactory. He says the President has taken more nourishment to-day than on any day and a little more stimulant, and has retained it all. His strength keeps up, and altogether his condition is gratifying. Colonel Rockwell said to-night: "About 6 this evening the President awakened from a short sleep and inquired, 'Where's Bliss?' Dr. Bliss was immediately called, and the President said, 'Dr. I feel tired. Had you not better tuck me in my little bed?' The President's wound hurt him some, and he wanted it dressed for the night. He continues his good-humored cheerfulness and manifests it frequently. One good sign, however, is that he gets a little cross sometimes. Doctors and attendants say this is indeed favorable.

Arthur received visits to-day from several cabinet ministers. He says he begins to feel like himself once more as the President improves. The load of anxiety is removed from his mind. Letters to Mrs. Garfield and others at the White House proposing remedies, making suggestions, and in many cases from doctors offering remedies and guaranteeing a cure, continue to pour in by the score. These people might as well save their labor and postage stamps.
